TALENT DISPLAYED

Little Lucy has just returned from the children's party, and had been brought into the parlor to be exhibited before the dinner guests.

"Tell the pretty ladies what Mama's darling did at the party," urged the proud mother.

"I frowned up," said Lucy.—Winter Haven Herald.

NOT IN THE BOOK

A medical student about to be inducted into the army recently underwent an operation in a suburban hospital. The establishment was chronically short of help, and the nurse's aid who timidly entered his room on the fifth evening was an obvious novice.

"They said to get you ready for bed," she began, "but you are my first patient. What am I supposed to do?"

"Perfectly simple," the patient replied. "You fluff up my pillows, run my back with alcohol and then kiss me goodnight."

The young miss followed the routine faithfully and to the complete satisfaction of her patient. But at the door she paused, and pondered. "That last part," she reflected, "I'll bet I wasn't supposed to do that at all."—Glades County Democrat.

UNION VETERANS

On April 30, 1944, of the 2,213,000 men who served in the union armies 412 were still alive and drawing federal pensions. The dependents (almost all widows) of 28,271 civil war veterans also were receiving pensions. The average pension drawn by veterans was $98.54 a month, by dependents $7.60 a month.

The average age of all civil war veterans still alive is 98; widows, 89. The largest number of civil war soldiers on the pension roll was 746,000 in 1898; of widows, 301,000, in 1912.—Bradenton Herald.

SUPERFICIAL VIEW

Two soldiers were on a transport going over-seas. Standing on the deck they gazed out across the vast expanse of water.

"That's the most water I've ever seen in my life," said one. "Did you ever see so much water?"

Said his companion: "You ain't seen rothin' yet. That's just the top of it!"—Wisconsin Telephone News.

CAESAR'S GHOST GETS AN EYEFUL

If the spirit of Julius Caesar is still lurking around anywhere, he must have been watching when those American doughboys roared into Rome and took possession. The most famous of conquerors, while not oblivious to political and geographical problems, would have been fascinated by the machine equipment.

He was a man who loved power, and conquered the whole known or accessible world by armed forces. His weapons—the bows, arrows, spears, and even the catapults—which battered down walled cities by throwing great stones at them—would have seemed pitifully weak now, and lacking in ingenuity. But they were good in their time.

The great 40-ton tanks armed with cannon, familiar in present warfare, are the lineal descendants of Caesar's war chariots. He would admire them to the point of wonder. But his greatest wonder would be for the aircraft, the giant vultures riding majestically above the clouds and hurling down upon the enemy explosives thunderbolts that would lay their cities in ruins.

The ancient conquerors, for all their destructive powers, were mere children compared with a modern G.I. riding on an iron monster or raining death from the sky.—Sanford Herald.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

by Russell Kay

Last week, the fume burned and spluttered closer to the political bomb that has been smoldering in the Leon County Circuit Court since last fall when it was tossed there by representatives Thomas B. Dowda and Joe Jenkins in an effort to set aside the veto of Governor Holland of that part of the General Appropriations Bill known as the "House Philosophy," when Judge W. May Walker ruled the Governor's veto ineffective.

The representatives, as citizens and taxpayers, brought suit in an effort to force Comptroller J. M. Lee to keep his accounts in accordance with the manner prescribed in the bill, which passed the House by a vote of 81 to 6 and the Senate by a vote of 35 to 1, clearly indicating the desire of the legislative body to set up rigid budgetary control of all state expenditures and provide lawmakers and the public with a detailed accounting of how and where such funds are spent.

In his ruling Judge Walker held that that part of the bill which said "all disbursements made under the appropriation shall be classified according to personal, capital, and other purposes," was unconstitutional.

S. S. Faculty Meets With Gilberts

A most inspiring meeting of the faculty of the Pahokee Baptist Sunday School was conducted last Thursday night, at the home of the superintendent and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Othman Gilbert. Following a delicious supper of fried chicken and "appertunement," the monthly business meeting was entered into. Mrs. Brown will be recommended to the church to serve as Cradle Roll Superintendent.

Instead of an outdoor picnic this year, the school will take over the Pahokee skating rink this Thursday, where ice cream, etc., in abundance will be served. Tickets will be given at the Sunday School this Sunday to the members and prospects for the school. It was voted to invite Mrs. L. McDonnell and Mrs. G. Vagts, state workers, to visit the school this Fall, for a week of conference and study. Those attending the above: Margaret Powell, Mrs. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Spoor, Betty Spoor, Dew and Mrs. Moberg, Mr. and Mrs. Tillis, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert, Mrs. Young Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. Kemp.

services, travel expenses, contract services, supplies, and capital outlay.

At the same time he upheld the Governor's veto of a part of the action which would have required that "detailed classification shall be printed in the Comptroller's annual report and shall be approved by the state budget commission as the classification of accounts in the preparation of budget of the State of Florida," as justified on the grounds that such provision was unconstitutional.

The Court refused to dismiss the complaint as moved by the defendant and provided for the transfer of cause to the lay side of court. All of which may not make much sense to the lay mind but it means this political battle is far from ended and the way is open for further action.

Dowda and Jenkins are trying to get back into the appropriations bill a provision that would end the present state accounting practice of lumping all expenditures, except salaries under the "miscellaneous" category of "necessary and regular."

This practice, the complainants bill a provision that would end the present state accounting practice of lumping all expenditures, except salaries under the "miscellaneous" category of "necessary and regular."

tion bills that make specific allocations of funds. He exceeded his authority in vetoing the "classification of expenditures" section as it did not contain any appropriation and further contend that the reasons given for vetoing the several sections were "inaccurate, untrue and irrelevant and constitute no legal or constitutionally valid grounds for such action."

As the matter now stands, it appears that both sides have won a point, in the Court's opinion a portion of the Governor's veto was invalid, that having to do with the classification of accounts, but that additional provisions of the section were unconstitutional. "The battle is still in the beach-head stage and it promises to warm up as time goes on."

Canal Point loses another business house: Pahokee gains one. O. W. Giddens announces this week that on July 1 he will move his furniture store from Canal Point to Pahokee and will be located in the Creel building. The most attractive and substantial building in Pahokee and will make a beautiful home for Mr. Giddens' furniture store. He is busy this week making a few minor changes in the building in order that it will easily take care of his large stock. He has also leased the space above Tabby's restaurant and this will be used for storage space. With the Creel building and the space above the restaurant, Mr. Giddens will have within a few feet of the same amount of floor space he had in Canal Point.

The jury in the Ellick Chaney case, in which he was accused of shooting to death Thomas Wilson on the night of Feb. 17, after more than an hour's deliberation last Saturday morning, reported to Judge White that it was impossible to reach a verdict. The jury was dismissed by the judge and September 11 set as the new trial date. The accused is out on bond in the amount of $3,000.

This "elderberry" business is bringing new money into the Lake Region. Shippers are going northward regularly and many folks are gathering shekels heretofore unthought of in the berry business. For many years elderberries have grown profusely in these parts but folks were to busy getting rich in the bean business to give them a thought. However, within the past few weeks the demand has grown to the point where many folks are entering "the business." One man with his three sons on Tuesday of this week cleared $37.47 when the day's work of picking and selling was over. Reliable reports are to the effect that some alphas agency will not allow use of grapes for wine making and the lowly elderberry is being substituted. Outliers say that elderberry wine is of the potency that which is there is none finer. Any sale of the elderberry is bringing more new money to the Glades.

With a shortage of labor several lots on the townsite in Canal Point have grown up in St. Augustine grass. One lot in particular which before the war was kept mowed regularly for a playground for youngsters, had grown waist high in the luxuriant grass. But this week it is being trimmed to the muck. O. H. Tucker, cattle raiser, has a crew of men busy cutting the grass to replant on one of his cattle ranches near Brighton. Mr. Tucker gains some splendid grass plantings and the townsite gains in beauty because of his need for the plantings.

Cinematic Chatter

One of the most powerful stories of the underground movement in Europe comes to the Prince Theatre this Sunday-Monday with the screening of "Hostages" which stars and features Louise Rainer, William Bendix, the Jap-trapper of "Wako Island," Paul Lukas, topping his greatest screen hits. The story concerns itself with a band of terrorists who are blowing up Nazi installations and moving things decidedly unpleasant for the roundabout. When Alsie, the underground leader, William Bendix, impersonating a mooning washroom attendant, unexpectedly becomes a Nazi hostage, things begin to happen.

Tuesday-Wednesday ushers in a cute and light little comedy with music under the title "Best Gal." This one stars Jane Withers and Jimmy Lyon and it marks Jane's first glamour role. It is a story of the theatre, which is always interesting. In the picture it is discovered that Jane has a very good singing voice and it is proposed to her that she go on the stage. Left she refuses. At last through a clever scheme they manage to get an audition.

Creel moved out and Bert Lapp closed his sundry store. Last week P. E. Bryant, owner, had a crew of carpenters put the building in shape. Much new material was used in renovating the building. Screens were repaired, the roof fixed, and all the little things repaired that usually are found around a building after it stands vacant for a while. Mr. Bryant didn't said so but it is our belief that the two store rooms are for rent.

A legal notice published this week is to the effect that the corporation operating the Pahokee Lumber Company is being dissolved. This only means that the corporation is being dissolved and that the concern will operate in the future as the Pahokee Lumber Company, a partnership and not as a corporation. This explanation is necessary since several other have asked this writer if it meant the company was quitting business. Business will continue as usual and with the old slogan: "We Do Appreciate Your Business." Ronald Brooker is manager of the lumber concern.

An Editors Job

The title "editor" is sometimes misunderstood by newspaper readers, not because they want to misunderstand but because they have never been told just what the functions are of the persons who hold this title. An editor, to explain it briefly, is one who superintends, revises or prepares literary matter for publication. The title does not necessarily mean that the policy of the newspaper is set or controlled by the editor. On large newspapers there are many editors, and policy is usually decided by the managing editor. The duties of the other editors—city, sport, suburban, women's page and others, is simply to carry out the duties prescribed in their particular spheres.

In fully 90 percent of weekly papers, the editor is also the publisher. In other words he fills the dual role of preparing literary matter for publication and of deciding upon policy as well.

Essentially the editor is a human being, writing and dealing with men, women and children. He may be young or old, lazy or energetic, bold or timid, superficial or deep, querulous or constructive, shrewd or business-like, grasping or generous. He is certain to be human. He reacts to praise and criticism to good and evil in much the same way as those who share community life with him. The editor, and this is true of 90 percent of all small town editors, recognizes the inherent decency of the countryside. He is still sufficiently old-fashioned to believe with his readers that the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule have neither been repealed, improved upon or modified by modern advances.

The editor is a student of community affairs. He has at his disposal records of public organizations in the community, and it is from his study of these records that he makes his editorial comment. He is not easily swayed by hysteria. Like the people he serves he uses good common sense in his reasoning. The editors of weekly newspapers, serving the rural areas, are a greater power than most people suspect, for it is a political fact that more members of the legislature and congress are elected from the rural areas than from the cities.

It is the editor who decides what is fit and what is not fit to print. It is he who differentiates between news and propaganda. It is he who can if he will, give the leadership that every energetic community must have. He is not hard to get along with, but he has a code of ethics which often causes him to refuse business that accept it against well grounded principles. He is not a super-human. He is a hard-working individual doing an important job in the community to the best of his ability, and if at times he fails in his task it must be remembered that he is like every other human being, in the community. True to this frailties with which all mankind is endowed.—Palatka Daily News.

FROM General Bradley, leading the Invasion ground forces, right through every rank, American men now face a brutal, desperate, able enemy. For this invasion has only begun—before our fighters lies a hard and bloody task, one that demands all their courage, backed by all your faith in their ultimate victory.

usually only mean more savage opposition from a foe made more bitter, more ruthless as the shadow of his doom grows larger—up to you to keep that faith in days and nights of gloom as well as in hours of triumph.
